These tales provide a wealth of knowledge about the nature of the Otherworld while pointing the way for modern practitioners to access and explore this realm. This is particularly true of those tales surrounding the God Manannan mac Lir. A final character that should be mentioned is the Otherworldly dog or hound.

In Celtic mythology, the Otherworld is the realm of the deities and possibly also of the dead. In Gaelic and Brittonic mythology it is usually described as a supernatural realm of everlasting youth, beauty, health, abundance and joy. The Otherworld is usually elusive, but various mythical heroes visit it either through chance or after being invited by one of its residents. They often reach it by entering ancient burial mounds or caves, or by going under water or across the western sea. Sometimes

Kelley Armstrong Otherworld Tales 2005 8 was made of roughhewn wood, not stone and marble. A mausoleum for a farmer's family was ridiculous... as every neighbor had, at some point, whispered to another. But that was the condition of marriage his mother had made. "My children must be buried above ground," she'd told his father.
